7.2.1

Best Practice 1

Title: Women Empowerment:

Context:

A society with equal opportunities for men and women can make sustainable development. Educational institutes have very important role in creating such gender unbiased environment. Our institute believes in this fact. Women empowerment is a crucial aspect of societal development aiming to create an environment where women have equal opportunities, rights, and representation. Women empowerment is the growth and empowerment of women, enabling them to make informed choices, participate actively in decision-making processes, and achieve their full potential. Recognizing the significance of women empowerment, our institute has implemented it as a best practice.

Women empowerment is not only a best practice for NAAC but also a cornerstone of sustainable development and progress for any institution committed to nurturing the potential of all individuals.

At our institute, women empowerment is deeply ingrained in our institutional culture and policies. We have adopted a multi-faceted approach to ensure gender equality and empowerment. The key components of our women empowerment initiatives include education, skill development, leadership opportunities, and support mechanisms.

Objectives:

1. Enhanced Academic Environment
2. Leadership Development
3. Increased Participation
4. Promoting Gender Equality

Practice:

- 1. Awareness Campaigns: Conducting workshops, seminars, promotional rangoli/mehndi competitions and awareness campaigns to educate our students and the women from nearby villages about the importance of women empowerment and gender equality. Financial literacy is another crucial aspect of our gender equity initiatives. We conduct workshops and seminars that provide women with essential knowledge about financial management, budgeting, and investment strategies. By equipping them with these skills, we empower women to make informed decisions regarding their finances and secure their economic independence.
- 2. Health and hygiene: Health and hygiene is very important aspect of women empowerment. Our institute conducts several health camps and seminars for women so that the importance of health can be spread among them. To promote a healthy lifestyle, we have integrated Ayurveda into our gender equity activities. Through workshops and sessions, we educate women about the benefits of Ayurveda and help them adopt practices that enhance their overall well-being. By empowering women to take charge of their health, we contribute to their personal growth and happiness.
- 3. Creating Safe Spaces: Establishing an environment, free from discrimination, harassment, and violence, and implementing policies to address any grievances.
- 4. Providing Equal Opportunities: Ensuring equal access to resources, and leadership roles for women.

Evidence of Success:

The success of this practice can be seen through the increasing response of women to our activities. Our guidance for home industry development like tailoring business has motivated many of beneficiaries and they started enquiries about these businesses. Some of the women started participating in self-help groups. This activity motivated few of them for small businesses like beauty parlour and cake/pastry making as home industry.

Problems encountered and resources required:

Sometime it is difficult initially to gather women for guidance sessions. The reason may be socioeconomic background. Getting experts from divers areas like beauty parlour, bakery, tailoring is challenging due to their own busy schedules.
